

Council for American Private Education

Blue Ribbon Schools Update

September 9, 2010

Congratulations!

Congratulations on your school being named a National Blue Ribbon School! The U.S. Department of Education released the list of winning schools today.

More information about today's announcement, including the complete list of private schools and links to relevant USDE announcement pages, is available on CAPE's Web site.

Your school community must be on cloud nine. We at the Council for American Private Education join you in celebrating your school's success.

You, your staff, students, and parents should be proud and pleased that your efforts to deliver the highest quality education are not only successful, but are an example to others.

Again, congratulations and best wishes to your entire community. We look forward to seeing you in Washington for the national recognition ceremony November 15-16. The USDE will advise you of details soon.

Private Education: Good for Students, Good for Families, Good for America